

Pound Netting

RA: did you did your father ever do anything with oysters did he ever WJH: no, he never did oyster no

RA: Ok

CK: his trade was mainly pound netting

WJH: and i never did

CK: Ok

WJH: Sam and myself is the only two taken to the water

CK: ok, so tell me about the pound netting

WJH: what would you want to know about it

CK: well i i know very little i know it's a special type of, trap, and i_ how_ what time would you go out in the morning to start it just tell me what it was like WJH: ... well uh we start in the morning we work tides

CK: mhm

WJH: sometimes two o'clock in the morning one o'clock... we follow the tide along... that's how that was work

CK: and now when would you put the pound nets down

WJH: well bout this time of year bout by the tenth of March anyway CK: Ok

WJH: i used to make all that stuff the net... the pounds... one time i was pound fishing... then i like i say i started i think i go to sea... an advance storm from day (xx) the master of three boats CK: wow

Dr. Anderson ENG 550 Guditus 1

Conversation: Transcript

Oral history interview

Carlene Klein (interviewer)

Research Assistant to Carlene

William Jennings Hogge

Sophie Hall

Kay

Recorded on March 25, 2015